NASS URGES FARMERS TO COUNT THEIR FARMS
ALONG WITH THEIR BLESSINGS THIS HOLIDAY SEASON

As Virginia farm families gather this Thanksgiving to count their many blessings and give thanks for another successful harvest, the National Agricultural Statistics Service (NASS) Virginia Field Office urges these producers to ensure their farm or ranch is also counted in the 2007 Census of Agriculture. The Census is a crucial tool that provides farmers with a voice in the future of their community and operation.

"Thanksgiving reminds us that having a safe and bountiful food supply can be easy to take for granted when farmers have been doing such a great job ensuring our nation has the nutrition and resources it needs to live well," said Herman Ellison, Director of the NASS Virginia Field Office. "But to ensure farmers can continue feeding and clothing a growing world, we need to provide them with the programs, services, and tools they need. To do this, we urge them to speak out and let their voices be heard by participating in the 2007 Census of Agriculture."

Conducted every five years by the USDA, the Census is a complete count of the nation's farms and ranches and the people who operate them. The Census looks at land use and ownership, operator characteristics, production practices, income and expenditures and other topics. It provides the only source of uniform, comprehensive agricultural data for every county in the nation.

"Thanksgiving is the perfect time to remind farmers how important they are and how much the nation appreciates their hard work," said Ellison. "It's also a good time to remind them that they have a voice and a responsibility to use that voice to make a better future. Tools like the Census enable farmers to help shape the future of agriculture and their own local communities."

NASS will mail out Census forms on December 28, 2007 to collect data for the 2007 calendar year. Completed forms are due by February 4, 2008. Producers can return their forms by mail or, for the first time, they have the convenient option of filling out the Census online.
